

Andy Scott School of Golf

Located in the Sunshine State, the Andy Scott School of Golf is no stranger to the quick-growing golf scene. The Andy Scott School of Golf laid its roots in Southwest Florida in 2012, and PGA Professional Andy Scott has not looked back since. The Andy Scott School of Golf operates out of several locations in Southwest Florida, offering private instruction, group lessons, golf clinics, corporate programs, and junior camps year round.

Director of Instruction, Andy Scott, is a familiar name to most in the area, after being named 2012 PGA Teacher of the Year of the South Florida Section, and 2010 and 2014 PGA Instructor of the Year in Southwest Florida. Andy Scott also currently works with several up-and-coming professional players, including Chase Marinell, PGA Tour Canada player, and five-time winner on the West Florida Golf Tour; and David Mobley, two-time REMAX World Long Drive Champion, fan-favorite on the Golf Channel's Big Break Dominican Republic, and aspiring Champions' Tour competitor. Students of Andy Scott have also found success at a collegiate level, as Andy has helped 26 junior golfers on their journeys to attaining NCAA Scholarships.

Recently, the Andy Scott School of Golf announced that it would be hosting three-day Elite Preparation Camps for both aspiring college and professional golfers. Spearheaded by Andy Scott and his team of Lead PGA Instructor Brian Newman, and Titleist Performance Institute Certified Instructor Darin Hovis, each camp aims to expose students to all necessary steps needed to prepare for a career in NCAA Collegiate Golf, or as a professional golfer.

The Florida College-Preparation Elite Golf Camp offers prospective college and professional golfers the opportunity to spend three full days with professionals who have backgrounds and experience in every facet of the game. Two camps remain for the month of July, and will run from July 10 – 12, and July 17 – 19.

All camps include accommodations at nearby Florida Gulf Coast University (FGCU), professional instructional programs, fitness assessments, video analysis, 3-D motion analysis, meals, camp memorabilia, guest speakers and more! Each camp will also be limited to twelve individuals, allowing for a more private and elite training experience.

Leading up to the Elite Preparation Camps, the Andy Scott School of Golf held a Birdie-A-Thon fundraiser, in an attempt to create scholarships for students who would otherwise not be able to attend the camp. This year, the foursome of Andy Scott, Brian Newman, Darin Hovis, and FGCU PGA Golf Management Intern Cathleen Wong managed to card an impressive 15-under, recording thirteen birdies and one eagle at Stoneybrook Golf Club in Estero.

In previous years, these scholarships have helped 10 students to full and partial aid for the camps. Ross Lally, 2013 Scholarship Recipient, shares his experience, "On May 17, 2013, the biggest thing in my life happened when my one true coach and mentor passed away – My father. He has a short battle with cancer. My dad was always interested in my golf game, and always trying to help me improve. When Andy Scott, PGA, came to me telling me about the camp, I was very interested, but with what had happened with my father, we were financially stressed and could not [afford] to go. Andy understood our situation and told my mom and I that he could help; and I was so excited because I knew I could really get a lot of our the opportunity".

Apart from golf instruction, the Andy Scott School of Golf also offers golf-specific fitness classes, and will be teaming up with Around the Clock Fitness to launch an exciting new program in the near future. Headed by Brian Newman, Golf Fitness X (GFX) is a sport-specific training program, tailored to golfers who are looking to improve their golf game and their golf body at the same time.

With a structured golf fitness program, a golfer would be able to look towards:

- Increased strength and stability formore distance and accuracy
- Increased flexibility for in-jury prevention
- Increased endurance necessary to play 18 holes of golf
- Heightened focus without becoming overly exhausted during practice or during a round of golf

The Andy Scott School of Golf provides golf instruction at Stoneybrook Golf Club in Estero, and at Palmetto Pines Country Club in Cape Coral. Additionally, the school will also begin offering Golf Fitness X classes at Around the Clock Fitness (Alico Location and Boy Scout Location) on Monday, July 6, 2015. 🏌️
